POLITICAL WAR NOW LOOMING

INDICTMENT OF SEN. WHEELER TO CAUSE TROUBLE

Charges Against Prober to Increase Bitterness to Fever Heat

Chicago April 9.—President Coolidge was leading by 10,000 votes today with between a third and a half of Illinois vote counted after a close race in which Senator Johnson captured Cook county. A decisive victory for the president was claimed in Nebraska and Coolidge supporters stated their candidate had advanced to within twenty-five votes of the 555 needed to nominate at Cleveland.

The same precincts indicated on the Democratic ticket that nominees of the "regular" ticket were running well ahead of delegates pledged to William G. McAdoo and that Illinois would send an un instructed delegation to the New York convention.

Coolidge and Johnson ran a nip and tuck race in Cook county, where early returns from 1450 precincts, little more than half the county's entire vote, showed Coolidge 97,885; Johnson 102,892. This advantage of 5,000 for the California Senator was offset, however by returns from downstate, the total from 1991 precincts of the state's 5,668 giving Coolidge 144,887; Johnson, 134,719.

Johnson's managers, however, would not concede that the returns would show Coolidge ahead when the remote voting districts had reported.

The state's biggest surprise was furnished by the lead taken by Charles S. Deneen, former governor over Senator Medill McCormick for the Republican nomination for senator. Deneen was running 97,323 to McCormick's 86,443 in early returns.

Governor Len Small led by more than 30,000 over Thurlow G. Essington for the Republican nomination for governor and his renomination was conceded by from 80,000 to 100,000 votes.

Washington, April 9.—One of the bitterest political wars within memory loomed today as a result of the sensational Montana indictment of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Democratic prosecutor of the senate's investigation of former Attorney General Daugherty's administration in the department of justice.

Although Wheeler probably will eliminate himself in the near future, it was learned definitely that the investigation will be continued. Instead of stopping the inquiry, indications were that the effect of the indictment would be to increase the bitterness that has marred at times the proceedings to date.

Democratic spokesmen also planned to make the Montana action the subject of senatorial debate. With party bitterness already at fever heat, and a presidential election approaching, observers expected an outburst of partisan warfare.

It was indicated the Democratic leadership in the senate would direct Wheeler's defense. This course would be adopted, because the charges against him reflect on the Democratic party as well as the senator. It was learned that Wheeler spent most of last night in consultation with Democratic leaders.

Even though Wheeler removes himself from the investigation, the Democratic-insurgent coalition will continue in control. According to Senator Brookhart, Republican of Iowa, the insurgent chairman, the inquiry will be pressed with renewed vigor the moment Wheeler steps aside to answer the Montana indictment.

Wheeler himself charged the indictment was a frameup by the department of justice to embarrass the investigating committee.

"It was a rotten frameup," said Wheeler today. "I have been employed as attorney for Gordon Campbell, a geologist, but I never knew the other man. I never appeared or even interested myself before the interior department or any other department.

"Some time ago, I did receive a letter from Campbell relative to oil leases but I never acted upon it. I think my secretary answered it. At the time I rather suspected some sort of frameup and recently, I heard the department of justice was trying to indict me. This whole affair was framed to impede the select committee's investigation of Daugherty. It will fail in its purpose, however, for the investigation will continue."

In reply to Wheeler's charge of a "frameup," former Attorney General Daugherty declared that the evidence against the Montana senator was gathered by the post office department and the department of justice had nothing to do with it.

MORE TROOPS SENT TO PATROL BATTLE TORN MINE DISTRICT

Pineville, Ky., April 9.—Additional state troops arrived here early today and took up patrol duty in the turbulent Straight Creek mine section following twenty-four hours of intermittent mining and outbreaks of violent rifle fire.

Practically every woman and child left the camp early today, crest fires, alleged to have been started by union miners were still aging thills morning, the whole mountain range being a solid sheet of flame.

COOLIDGE LEADS ILLINOIS VOTE OVER JOHNSON

Democrats Will Have Un-instructed delegation at Convention

Chicago April 9.—President Coolidge was leading by 10,000 votes today with between a third and a half of Illinois vote counted after a close race in which Senator Johnson captured Cook county. IMPROVEMENT OF LABOR CONDITIONS PROMISED SOON

Columbus, April 9.—A total of 49,132 men and women sought work last month through the thirteen state city free employment bureaus, according to the March report of Otto W. Brach, chief of the labor statistics division state department of industrial relations. Of this number 16,474 were given employment.

An improvement of labor conditions with the coming of spring is indicated by the report. Approximately 4,000 more persons found employment through the bureau during March than were provided with work during February.

The report indicates that labor conditions in Springfield are better than in any other city in Ohio. Only seven men and four women applied for work there. The seven men were employed by Springfield organizations. Employers did not need the women.

MYSTERY MAN TELLS FIRST INSIDE STORY OF MER ROUGE MURDER

Atlanta, Ga., April 9.—A group of five desperates, all members of the Ku Klux Klan plotted the infamous hooded mob murders of Mer Rouge at a midnight conference in a Texas oil town in August, 1922, according to the "inside story" of the crime revealed by Dr. A. C. Busey, "man of mystery" before he disappeared from the federal prison here.

As a result, new investigation of the murder mystery was under consideration today by the department of justice on the basis of information turned over by International News Service. A nationwide search was meanwhile continued for Busey in the belief he might solve the tragedy which stunned the nation more than a year ago and which has since defied solution.

The Texas conference, Busey claimed, developed into a Ku Klux Klan uprising in Morehouse Parish a few weeks later, ending ultimately in the revolting murder of Watt Daniel, world war veteran, and the "traveling imprisonment" of his bosom friend, Thomas F. Richards, who had betrayed the former soldier to his doom.

Before he disappeared, Busey told friends the names of a clergyman, a town official, two wealthy oil men and a planter, all klansmen, who attended the Texas conference and turned "thumbs down" on Daniel's life. The death verdict was decreeed by these five men because Daniel "ran" bootleg liquor into Texas oil camps.

In his story of the plot and murder, Busey charged the state of Louisiana with "planting" in Lake La Fourche two fake bodies, culled from a medical school and charity hotel in New Orleans, to be later identified as those of Daniel and Richards.

The body of Daniel, he said, was still hidden in an impromptu burial ground beneath a cypress log not far from the lake. Richards is still alive, he added, and a captive of Daniel's slayers.

The plot, launched in the Texas oil town, spread like a prairie fire, Busey said. It led to the daylight kidnapping of five Parish citizens, including Daniel and Richards, and culminated in the brutal murder of the war veteran. Although three score klansmen were participants in the kidnappings, it was said only a carefully chosen "murder squad" of six klansmen carried Daniel and Richard off to their final reckoning. It was Busey's claim that while this squad murdered Daniel, it banished Richards to a captivity that has lasted for twenty months.

In this "murder squad" there were three strange klansmen imported from Arkansas, a parish official and two parish planters. One of its members told J. L. Daniel, aged father of the veteran, who was kidnapped and whipped on that fateful August night that:

"One of these men may come back. The other you will never see again."

In the original plot, Busey said, Richards captivity was to have ended when "things died down" but the unexpected nationwide publicity and the finding of the bodies in Lake La Fourche caused his captors to continue their bondage lest he betray them to the toils of justice.

Whether truth or fiction, Busey at least was the first klansman in the whole nation to boast that he knew the "inside story" of the Mer Rouge murders. His constant communication with high klansmen, his frequent conferences with imperial Klan officials and his knowledge of intimate details of the crime indicated there was some truth to his story.

If the countrywide search for him now being conducted by the department of justice is successful, Americans may at last learn the truth of the Mer Rouge murders.

J. F. Baughn, of Harlingen, Texas, declared Hamon told him after the convention: "I signed the check that nominated Warren G. Harding for president."

Baughn was not pressed for the amount of the alleged check but declared that Hamon further had told him he "would spend a million dollars, if necessary" to put Oklahoma in the Republican column behind Harding.

William H. Miller, Columbus, former assistant attorney general of Ohio, to whom J. B. French previously said Hamon gave $25,000 to pay the hotel bill of the Harding delegation at Chicago, followed Baughn on the stand.

Miller said he first met Hamon in April 1920, in Indianapolis, being introduced by Charles Watson, brother of Senator Watson, Republican of Indiana.

DAWES REPORT WILL BE BASIS OF FUTURE WORK

Experts Desire Report Be Accepted or Rejected As Whole

Paris, April 9.—While foreign office experts had not had time this afternoon to examine the Dawes report in detail, it was intimated that it will be the foreign office policy to use the report merely as a basis of future negotiations.

It is the desire of the experts that the report be accepted or rejected in whole. They made it plain in their report that they believe the recommendations and suggestions should be the last word on reparations.

The first newspaper on the street was L'Information.

"The experts implicitly recognize that Franco-Belgian policy induced Germany to capitulate," commented L'Information. "French opinion favorably accredits the project, recognizing that it brings something new, substituting solid values based upon rail-road receipts and taxes for A. B. C. bonds which were simply paper without guarantees. If Germany rejects the plan she will bring down upon herself the sentiment of the entire world, gravely compromising her credit."

In some quarters there was a disposition to criticize the report because it did not fix the total amount of indemnity Germany should pay and indicated that the French and Belgian machinery for supervision of industry in the Ruhr should be withdrawn.

HARLAN F. STONE IS SWORN IN NEW ATTORNEY GENERAL

Washington, April 9.—Harlan Fiske Stone, of New York, former dean of the Columbia university law school, was sworn in today as attorney general of the United States, succeeding Harry M. Daugherty.

M'COOK FIELD AIR PILOT KILLED IN ACCIDENT TUESDAY

Dayton, April 9.—Lieutenant Theodore S. Van Veghten, 32 years old, operation officer and test pilot at McCook Field, was killed Tuesday afternoon when his airplane failed to come out of a tall spin and fell 300 feet, crashing into a road in the north end of the field.

Lieutenant Van Veghten went into the air shortly after 3 o'clock and had been up about 15 minutes conducting an ignition test in a Vaught plane, when the accident occurred. He was pronounced dead by Major R. A. Hale, field medical officer, who hurried to the wrecked plane in one of the field ambulances.

The body of the flyer was taken to the Whitmer Brothers funeral parlors, where it is being held pending word from his mother, Mrs. Jennie H. Cook, at Mechanicsville, N. Y.

Lieutenant Van Veghten, who was unmarried, had been stationed at McCook field since July 10, 1922, being transferred there from Bolling Field, Washington, D. C. He had been flying many of the heavier ships and such as the Martin bombers and the T2 types.

The report calls for "commendable taxation" in Germany. The committee proposed either that a new bank of issue be created or the reichsbank be reorganized along the lines suggested for the establishing of a new bank of issue. This bank would be chartered for fifty years and would play an important part in stabilizing currency.

During the fifty years of the charter the proposed bank would have sole authority to issue German currency. In the meantime all the existing currency would be withdrawn from circulation. The new notes would be secured by a normal legal reserve of 33 1/3 percent and by other liquid assets. Its reserve would largely be in the form of deposits in foreign banks.

For the time being, new bank

STYLES SHOW INDIVIDUALITY

Individuality is one of the most striking things about American men. They insist on expressing their own ideas.

They won't all go to the same church, drive the same kind of car, vote the same political ticket or wear the same clothes. They simply must be "different."

That's one of the most refreshing things about American styles. You can't put the men in uniforms. Some like double-breasted clothes; some do not;

some like form-fitting styles and some want their clothes loose.

At the right is a two-button easy fitting, loosely draped suit of the modified English type with the buttons widely spaced and the waist line low.

Both are correct and both are popular.

CHAMBLISS-ELLIOTT NUPTIALS TUESDAY

The marriage of Miss Anna Lucile Chambliss, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Chambliss of West Second Street, to Mr. Charles Kenneth Elliott, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Elliott of the Stone Road, south of Xenia, was solemnized Tuesday evening, at six-thirty o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, in the presence of one hundred and fifty guests.

Strands of waxy smilax were twined over the walls of the reception rooms, and pink roses, with pink tapers combined to carry out a pink and white color scheme. Brilliant-hued potted flowers were placed in the bow window of the dining room.

Assisting in receiving the guests, were the Misses Ruth Whittington, of Denison University, Ruth Smith and Alice Foley of this city. Miss Whittington wore a scalloped frock of deep pink taffeta, Miss Smith brown taffeta, and Miss Foley gray velvet. Each wore a corsage of pink and white sweet peas and roses.

After the reception of the large guest list, Mrs. Fred Coy, accompanied by Miss Olivia Cost, sang "I Love You Truly" and "At Dawning." Miss Cost played the wedding march from Lohengrin upon the entrance of the bridal party. Miss Cost wore blue crepe, combined with cream lace, and Mrs. Coy's gown was of black satin and lace.

The Rev. G. A. Scott, pastor of the bride's church, the First Methodist Episcopal, led the procession to the archway between the living and dining rooms, where the ceremony was performed. The bridegroom entered with Mr. Frank Chambliss, who acted as best man. Little Billy Haines, dressed in white entered, carrying the ring in a white calla lily. Miss Marie Stevens, of Cleveland, as bridesmaid, walked alone. She was attired in pink marionette crepe, caught with bow knots of self material. She carried a huge bouquet of Columbia roses.

A path of rose petals was prepared for the bride by little Ida Elizabeth Haines, the flower girl, who was dressed in a pink frock. The bride, a charming girl, looked girlish in a gown of white marionette crepe, simply made. Her veil, which had been worn by three previous brides, was caught cap-fashon with a band of valley lilies, and fell to the hem of her gown. White bride's roses, and valley lilies formed her shower bouquet.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. After the ceremony, Miss Cost played the Mendelssohn wedding march.

After the felicitations of the guests, a two course supper was served. A bride's table was arranged in the dining room, centered with a pink and white wedding cake. Favors were tiny nut baskets of pink and white.

Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Elliott, the Rev. and Mrs. G. A. Scott, Miss Marie Stevens and Mr. Frank

TARIFF VS FREE TRADE

One of the fundamental differences between the Republican and the Democratic parties is their attitude on the tariff.

The Republican party believes in a tariff which not only provides revenues, but which, in addition, protects American industry from foreign competition. The Democratic party is a free trade, or tariff for revenue only, party.

A tariff for protection has been known as "the American policy" since the days of Henry Clay. The operation and the results of a tariff for protection fully justify this characterization. With three exceptions, and those of short duration, the United States has had the benefits of a protective tariff since the Republican party came into control of the government over sixty years ago.

During that period has occurred the industrial development of the United States. Since the Civil war, America has become the greatest industrial producing nation in the world.

With the development of her industries and their prosperity came, inevitably, the development of transportation, agriculture and business, for the products of the factories had to be moved, the wage earners had to be fed and the goods produced had to be sold.

It is not an exaggeration to state that America's position as the foremost, most prosperous nation of the world is due, in a very large measure, to the policy and operation of a protective tariff during the last sixty years.

The greatest beneficiary of such a tariff is the wage earner. America has a higher level of wages and a higher standard of living than any other nation in the world. This is made possible by the policy of protection.

The fact that wages are higher today than at any previous time in the history of American industry is mainly due to the Fordney-McCumber tariff. Not only has that tariff protected the American wage earner, but it has provided more revenue than any other American tariff ever enacted. Its operations have refuted every charge made against it during the period of its debate, and have given another example of the wisdom of the policy of the Republican protection.—John T. Adams, Chairman of the Republican National Committee.

GERMANY'S REAL BOSSSES

The real rulers of Germany are the industrial group headed by Stinnes. This is a fact never to be lost sight of in connection with German politics, either internal or external.

Not only do Stinnes and the rest wield the immense power that comes of overwhelming financial strength. They control that important organ of the German Government, the National Economic Council, without whose consent virtually no legislative measure can get even as far as the Reichstag.

No election can have any appreciable effect upon these water-tight control exercised by these bosses. No Government that might be set up could turn for a moment from the path they map out.

Stresemann, formerly Chancellor and now Foreign Minister of the Reich, is their man. Six months ago they apparently gave him carte blanche to settle the reparations dispute; they realized that almost any settlement would be preferable to the uncertainty of constant attempts at evasion, even though they also realized that they would have to bear the greater part of the burden. If Germany has really decided not to submit to the Dawes program, it means that the Stinnes group has determined to risk further pressure similar to that put upon them in the Ruhr territory.

This is possible, but not likely. Under pressure of the French occupation, these industrialists consented to shoulder the entire burden of coal, coke and iron deliveries demanded by the French industrial interests. In other words, they agreed to pay, without the help of the rest of the country, an obligation laid upon the whole of Germany. While they undertook to do this for six months only, their action is an indication of their stupendous financial strength.

Premier Poincare knew what he was doing when, by occupying the Ruhr Valley, he put the screws upon these industrial barons. He knew that if he made things unpleasant enough for them they would bring the German Government to terms. It was the bosses he was after.

Poincare also knows that it is only by maintaining a certain pressure upon them that the Berlin Government can be kept in line and reparations payments assured. The Ruhr occupation may become merely nominal in case Germany makes a real effort to meet her obligations. But the threat of further pressure on Germany's bosses and the ability to bring it to bear must continue to be France's most effective weapon.—Public Ledger.

EXPECT THEY LIKE IT

Cottage to palace tells the story of the Scottish miner, James Brown, who now finds himself raised to the post of Lord High Commissioner of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland. He is to live in Holyrood Palace, Edinburgh. Similar stories of amazing elevation might be told of many prime movers in the new regime of labor. Ramsay MacDonald, moving about the grounds of the beautiful country home Britain provides for her Prime Ministers, must sometimes be tempted to think he is dreaming, and Tom Shaw, with his cabinet portfolio, has not forgotten the winter days when he had to stay in bed for want of clothes. Aristocrats of Mayfair who prophesied the downfall of all the polite amenities and ceremonials have been surprised by the way in which labor leaders have adapted themselves to the new order.—Public Ledger.

Just Folks

by Edgar A. Guest

PHILOSOPHY

This is all the world will ask: Do your best with every task. Take your share of cloud and rain, But don't bitterly complain; Don't go moping round the place With a sad and gloomy face. Other folks have troubles, too, Much like those which come to you.

Rain is rain and care is care, Wrong and loss are everywhere, Rank injustice stalks about, Life is hard to reason out; Now and then you'll wonder why Some are laughing when you sigh, You will stumble, fall but then Rise and go to work again.

Do your best, and let it go. Do not wince at every blow— Other people suffer care, Other men have hearts to bear. Other men by griefs are bowed, But they would never have it shown What they suffer when alone.

A new tennis court has been laid out at the Xenia Seminary and will afford ample room for the favorite exercise.

It was recommended at the City Council meeting last night that the police force be increased. It was recommended that the pay of the chief be increased from $65 to $70 per month and patrolmen from $50 to $60 a month.

If the traction company does not do something toward ballasting the O. S. and S. O. Home track, the local car will have to make corkscrew twists in order to follow the track.

Representatives of the Home Telephone company of Springfield were at Osborn yesterday seeking to interest local capitalists in a phone company for that place.

Turn the mixture at once into a buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate oven for about 20 minutes. Do not let stand long before serving. When done, the center is firm and dry.

Asparagus-Stuffed Tomatoes: This is a pretty and tempting dish for a guest dinner or supper. Cream left-over cooked asparagus in the usual way (by adding to the asparagus a white sauce made of flour, sweet milk, salt and butter made as just described above) then fill hollowed-out ripe tomatoes with this mixture, sprinkle tops of tomatoes with buttered crumbs, and bake on a pan in a hot oven for 15 minutes. Serve hot. Ordinarily a busy housekeeper cannot go to the trouble of stuffing tomatoes or preparing other dishes of this sort, which require a good deal of time, but a guest meal justifies such "fussing."

"My family gets so tired of having left-over cooked asparagus served in salad form," writes a reader of this column. "Please tell me how else I can serve it attractively." The following recipes will be found delicious:

Asparagus Eggs: Beat six eggs light, adding to them one-half teaspoon of salt, one tablespoon of milk and one tablespoon of water. Turn this into a hot frying pan containing a tablespoon of butter and let cook for just a moment, stirring vigorously, then add a cupful of cooked, diced asparagus (the tips and the tender part of stalks) and as soon as the eggs are firm but soft, serve the mixture on slices of hot, buttered toast.

Cheese-Asparagus Baked Dish: Moisten one cup of soft breadcrumbs with four tablespoons of melted butter. Now put into a buttered baking dish a layer of these crumbs, then a layer of diced cooked asparagus and sprinkle generously with cheese; repeat these layers alternately, topping the dish with buttered cracker crumbs. Pour one-half cup of sweet milk over all and cook for 20 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve hot.

Asparagus Souffle: Make a white sauce by combining two tablespoons of butter, two tablespoons of flour, a pinch of salt and one cup of sweet milk as follows: Melt butter in a small saucepan, rub flour into it, add salt and, gradually, stir in the milk; let cook till thickened and smooth. Remove this sauce from the fire and stir into it the yolks of five eggs well beaten; also add one cup of diced cooked asparagus, then fold in the five eggwhites beaten to a stiff froth.

LECTURER PLEASES AUDIENCE IN FINAL LYCEUM NUMBER

Dr. Robert Parker Miles, world renowned dramatic lecturer, charmed an audience at the Jean B. Elwell auditorium Tuesday night when he gave as the final number of the high school lyceum course, his lecture "Tallow Dips."

Personal interviews he has had with famous persons were interwoven delicately by the lecturer with impersonations of these men, who included the great English statesman Gladstone, Theodore Roosevelt, ex-Kaiser Wilhelm, and others. He included in his impersonations one of a prisoner in Sing Sing with whom he had talked.

Dr. Miles remained in Xenia over night and addressed the assembled high school students in the auditorium Wednesday morning at the invitation of Superintendent C. A. Waltz.

About $400 was realized from the sale of tickets for the lyceum course and the money has been used to purchase scenery for the high school auditorium stage.

DAYTON THEATRICAL MANAGER PRAISES FORMER XENIA GIRL

Under the caption, "A Coming Star" Leon Berg, well known Dayton theatrical man and manager of The Playhouse pays the following high tribute to the ability of Miss Mary Katherine Brennan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Brennan, former Xenians, in a recent issue of the Dayton Players Magazine:

The writer knows of no greater medium in cultivating a taste for the drama than the excellent training high school students derive from their dramatic art teachers. The annual and semi-annual plays presented by these embryo thespians are sufficiently interesting to lure even the manager of the legitimate stage to the folds of these aspirants for dramatic triumphs.

I attended a performance of the 1924 Junior Class of Steele High School, last Friday evening. On the program was "Ruth in a Rush," a sort of farcical comedy with a fibre of love and quite a dash of rural fantasy. It is not my intention to pen a review of the very well staged performance, for which Miss Grace H. Stivers assisted by Miss Pauline Curtner, deserves a full measure of credit but I do want to say something real encouraging to Miss Mary C. Brennan, the charming and dear little young lady, who portrayed the character of Ruth, with a skill and finesse which predicts for her a positive future on the dramatic stage. Miss Brennan has personality, a clear and perfect enunciation and plays at ease. She does not indulge in gesticulations, so noticeable among amateurs but rather has a keen understanding of every move and action, just as one would expect of a professional player.

Miss Brennan thinks while she acts She has her mind on every line and situation and one could readily understand that she also carried her heart and soul in the role of Ruth. Some day this gifted lady may be a popular member of the Dayton Players. She certainly will be welcomed by the management.

The paper also explained the circumstances surrounding the withdrawal of the club from The Miami Valley Quoit League. It pointed out that the local club had withdrawn from the league before that body took action eliminating all but Montgomery County teams. It spoke of the intention of forming intra-club teams in the Xenia organization, which would play each other and afford an opportunity to all members to take part in the contests. Possibility of the formation of a women's quoit organization and laying out of grounds for them which would meet their needs was brought out. MODISH MITZI—Much Ado About Nothing But Lingerie

"Have you seen Harry?" asks Polly guilelessly. "Harry?" questions Mitzi. "Is he back? But I must tell you girls—I met the nicest young man..." It doesn't sound like an engagement. Mitzi has disappointed them. (She knew the contents of those packages.)

The Duke of Devonshire, once Governor-General of Canada, is the man of the hour in Canada. He has pledged $2,000,000 of his own fortune to insure the holding of the great British Empire Exposition to be held in London from April to October.

Polly says to Dora (You remember the once Dowdy and now Fashionable Dora): "There's Harry going to Mitzi's! Do you suppose...?" and Polly romantically hopes for a reconciliation between Harry and Mitzi. "Yes," says Dora, "I wouldn't be surprised. He's whistling, too." (No man with a broken heart has a right whistle.)

Polly thinks she has gathered enough evidence to go shopping on. Troussseau presents are such lovely things to buy. She decides on a lovely crepe de chine combination. Beautiful filet lace and net ruffles are combined with long tucks. The bodice and the pantaloons are joined with lace.

Dora has gone and done likewise. She is determined not to be caught surprised. Mitzi expresses her preference for V-neck nightgowns one time. This night gown has long pleats set in the under arm. There's a ducky heart-shaped pocket of lace. Orange blossoms trim it, too.

The Torrington family name is Byng. Lady Torrington has definitely taken up a stage career. She had never acted professionally before, but had taken part in many amateur theatricals in Ireland. She was secretly married to Viscount Torrington last September.

The oldest of the children is Alice, 15, and the youngest is Vivian, one.

MONEY AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments

Many times it is a good investment for a business to make a larger outlay for rent because employees sometimes prefer better working conditions to more salary.

Rent averages from 2 to 8 percent of the gross expense in business while labor runs 40 per cent, or more.

Employees, especially girls, are particular where they work. They usually prefer:

1. The financial district.
 2. The retail district.
 3. The factory district.
- By constructing a good looking building in a better district, the employees would be better satisfied and probably would be content to work for less money.

The chances are that the saving in labor would more than compensate the increase in rent.

Why suffer from Rheumatism?

HERE is a certain unexplainable feeling that goes with hale and hearty old age—it is a feeling of happiness, of care unknown, of re-born youth.

But rheumatism—that deadly malady which has caused so many to surrender to the woes of pain and suffering—caused so many to forego the pleasures of life—caused so many to be dependent. Why suffer from it?

To be helped about—crutches, canes and willing hands always needed to assist you here and help you there. Rheumatism will vanish the same as skin disorders—the same as sallow complexion—the same as that run-down condition when S. S. S. is used. S. S. S. builds red blood cells by the score. Your nerve power is strengthened. When rich, red, economical.

healthy blood courses through your veins, there is no such thing as inflammation or neuralgia of the muscles and joints. S. S. S. is what you need to retain that old time vim and vigor and vitality, when you turn down the final stretch of life.

Mr. M. A. Farmer, Elyria, Ohio, writes:

"S. S. S. relieved me of rheumatism and nervousness. It is the best medicine for building up the blood."

S. S. S. is made of carefully selected and scientifically prepared and proportioned herbs and barks. Only pure vegetable ingredients are used. Stronger healthier bodies—bodies able to withstand the onslaughts of disease and the results of S. S. S. All leading drug stores carry S. S. S. The large size is the more economical.

VERDICT OF $5,000 AWARDED WOMAN AGAINST WILBERFORCE U.

Mrs. Grace Green, colored, was awarded $5,000 damages against Wilberforce University and the trustees of the Combined Normal and Industrial Department which is state owned, by a jury in Common Pleas Court here Tuesday afternoon.

She had brought suit for $20,000 alleging permanent injuries received when she fell through an open man hole on the university campus in February, 1921. The jury was out about an hour and one-half and in returning the verdict, answered three interrogatories presented by the Court.

Trial of the case began Tuesday morning before Judge R. L. Gowdy. The plaintiff alleges she was one of a crowd waiting to enter the university gymnasium to attend a basketball game, when the lights in the building went out. J. D. Newsome, chief engineer, testified he entered a tunnel under the building to fix the lights, leaving the iron door to the tunnel entrance open. It was in this opening that the plaintiff fell. She alleged her sides and head were hurt and that as a result, she is blind.

The case was given to the jury following the charge of the court at three o'clock. The jury reported shortly afterward that a verdict had been reached but that the amount of damages had not been fixed. The jury reported again about 4:25 with a complete verdict, in which eleven members concurred, a vote of nine only being necessary. Arthur Whalen was selected foreman of the jury.

The three interrogatories presented by the court were: 1. Was the electric plant and system owned, operated or controlled by Wilberforce University? 2. Were the employees who removed the cover from the manhole, made the repairs and left the man-

MAN IS RETURNED FROM FLORIDA TO STAND TRIAL HERE

Probation Officer J. E. Watts returned Tuesday afternoon from St. Augustine, Fla., bringing with him John Clifton Greer, colored, wanted here on a non-support charge filed by his wife, Ida Greer.

Greer has been wanted on the charge here for some time. Authorities began their search last fall, in which the War Department and soldiers' organizations cooperated. Greer was found to have lived for a time in Niagara Falls and also in New York City, before it was learned he was in Florida.

St. Augustine authorities kept Greer under surveillance, while he was employed as a waiter in a hotel there, until they learned the local officer had obtained requisition papers and started for Florida last Wednesday. They then placed him under arrest.

Greene Countians Who Have Achieved Distinction

It is interesting to note that Greene County has furnished more than its share of people who have attained renown.)

ORAN F. HYPES

The death of Oran Faville Hypes in 1915 ended a brilliant business career for a man who had still found time from business to take an active part in serving his community and the state in the finer things.

He was a merchant, a legislator and a public spirited citizen, who won wide recognition in all of these endeavors. Mr. Hypes was born in Xenia, December 18, 1862, the son of Samuel Henry and Hannah Van Brocklin Hypes.

He attended the Xenia public schools and accomplished the unusual feat of graduating from Central High School here in 1879 when only 16 years of age. After acquainting himself with business methods in Xenia stores, he moved to Springfield in 1888, when only a very young man, to take charge of the Fulton and Hypes men's clothing and furnishing store. The partnership was dissolved in 1885 when Mr. Hypes bought out the interest of his partner, and later became one of Springfield's most prominent merchants.

Mr. Hypes served as a member of the Ohio House of Representatives two terms, from 1901 to 1905 and in the latter year began two terms as member of the State Senate from Clark county, serving until 1913. He was a trustee of the Clark County Children's Home for fourteen years. He took an active interest in Y. M. C. A. work serving as a member of the board of directors of the Springfield Y. M. C. A. and also on the state Y. M. C. A. board. He was a member of the State Library Board under Governor Willis.

Mr. Hypes served as a delegate to the General Methodist Episcopal Conference at Baltimore in 1908 and was a delegate to a similar conference held in Minneapolis, in 1912. He was prominent in Masonic circles in Springfield, was a past master of Anthony Lodge and past commander of Pales- tine Commandery, No. 33, Knights Templar.

Mr. Hypes was a member of the Lagonia Club, the Springfield Chamber of Commerce and the Men's Literary Club. He married Miss Jessie Johnson in Springfield and they had two children, a boy and a girl, the son preceding Mr. Hypes in death. Mr. Hypes died March 9, 1915. He was a brother of William F. Hypes of Chicago, who has also been mentioned in this series of personal sketches and of Miss Carrie Hypes of this city.

The Evil Shepherd

By E. PHILLIPS OPENHEIM

A man suddenly stepped forward. Shopland made no protest, attempted no struggle. They lifted him off his feet as though he were a baby, and a moment later there was a splash in the water. They threw a life-belt after him.

"Always humane, you see," Sir Timothy remarked, as he leaned over the side. "Ah! I see that even in his overcoat our friend is swimmer enough to reach the bank. You find our methods harsh, Ledman?" he asked, turning a challenging gaze towards the latter.

Francis, who had been watching Shopland come to the surface, shrugged his shoulders. He delayed answering for a moment while he watched the detective, disdaining the life-belt, swim to the opposite shore.

"I suppose that under the circumstances," Francis said, "he was prepared to take his risk."

"You should know best about that," Sir Timothy rejoined. "I wonder whether you would mind looking after Lady Cynthia? I shall be busy for a few moments."

Francis stepped across the deck towards where Lady Cynthia had been sitting by her host's side. They had passed into the mouth of a tree-hung strip of the river. The engine was suddenly shut off. A gong was sounded.

There was a murmur, almost a sob of relief, as the little sprinkling of men and women rose hastily to their feet and made their way towards the companion-way. Downstairs, in the saloon, with its white sashwood panels and rows of swing chairs, heavy curtains were drawn across the port-holes, all outside light was shut out from the place. At the further end, raised slightly from the floor, was a sanded circle. Sir Timothy made his way to one of the pillars by its side and turned around to face the little company of guests. His voice, though it seemed scarcely raised above a whisper, was extraordinarily clear and distinct. Even Francis, who, with Lady Cynthia, had found seats only inside the door, could hear every word he said.

"My friends," he began, "you have often before been my guests at such small fights as we have been able to arrange in an unorthodox manner as possible between professional boxers. There has been some novelty about them, but on the last occasion I think it was generally observed that they had become a little too professional, a little ultra-scientific. There was something which they lacked. With that something I am hoping to provide you tonight. Thank you, Sir Edgar," he murmured, leaning down towards his neighbor.

He held his cigarette in the flame of a match which the other had kindled. Francis, who was watching intently, was puzzled at the expression with which for a moment, as he straightened himself, Sir Timothy glanced down the room, seeking for Lady Cynthia's eyes. In a sense it was as though he were seeking for something he needed—approbation, sympathy, understanding.

"Our hobby, as you know, has been reality," he continued. "That is what we have not always been able to achieve. Tonight I offer you reality.

There are two men here, one an East end coster, the other an Italian until lately associated with an itinerant vehicle of musical production. These two men have not outlived sensation as I fancy so many of us have. They seem to have been weighing every word he had spoken. There was none of that hungry pleasure in her face which shone from the other woman's and was reflected in the faces of many of the others. She seemed to be bracing herself for a shock. Sir Timothy looked toward the door which opened upon the sanded space.

"You can bring your men along," he directed.

One of the attendants promptly made his appearance. He was holding tightly by the arm a man of apparently thirty years of age, shabbily dressed, barefooted, without collar or necktie, with a mass of black hair which looked as though it had escaped the care of any barber for many weeks.

His complexion was sallow; he had high cheekbones and a receding chin, which gave him rather the appearance of a fox. He shrank a little from the lights as though they hurt his eyes, and all the time he looked furtively back to the door, through which in a moment or two his rival was presently escorted. The latter was a young man of stockier build, ill-conditioned, and with the brutal face of the lowest of his class. Two of his front teeth were missing, and there was a livid mark on the side of his cheek. He looked neither to the right nor to the left. His eyes were fixed upon the other man, and they looked dead.

"The gentleman who first appeared,"

Sir Timothy observed, stepping up into the sanded space but still half facing the audience, "is Giuseppe, the Lothario of this little act. The other is Jim, the wronged husband. You know their story. Now, Jim," he added, turning toward the Englishman, "put in your trousers pocket those notes, two hundred pounds, you will perceive. I place in the trousers pocket of Giuseppe here notes to the same amount. I understand you have a little quarrel to fight out. One who wins will naturally help himself to the other's money, together with that other little reward which I imagine."

Both men had drawn knives from their belts. It was murder which had been let loose.

line was the first cause of your quarrel. Now . . . let them go."

Sir Timothy resumed his seat and leaned back in leisurely fashion. The two attendants solemnly released their captives. There was a moment's intense silence. The two men seemed fencing for position. There was something stealthy and horrible about their movements as they crept around one another. Francis realized what it was almost as the little sobbing breath from those of the audience who still remained, showing any emotion, showed him that they, too, knew what was going to happen.

Both men had drawn knives from their belts. It was murder which had been let loose.
